

HUGO AND PLATO

Story theme- The Colour Monster

Week beginning 25th September 2023

REMINDERS

Thank you to everyone putting labels in everything, this has been so helpful! Just a reminder if you are needing support with organising transport, do speak to the class team.

Future dates:

On Friday 20th October, the HOPE team are hosting a coffee and cake morning 9-11am in the school hub.

FOOD

The children have all been working very hard at sitting at the table together when it is lunchtime. Do let us know if you want to see the dinner list so you can choose items you know your child would like.

NEXT WEEK

We are starting a new story called Owl babies. We will be thinking about homes as well families. Thank you so much for the family pictures we have already had in. If you haven't yet, please do still send them in as it's a great tool for the children when thinking about families.

HUGO

This week the children have continued to learn about emotions using the colour monster as our base story. The children did some fantastic work around the colour monster, creating art pieces, threading and exploring colours. We have begun to use our colourful semantics to communicate 'who' is in the story. Some of the children were matching and some of the children were choosing out of an option of two symbols. The children have continued to amaze us with how well they are settling and we are managing to have most of the children in the circle at circle time- this is really big and we are very proud of them!

PLATO

Plato have been continued to explore the story 'The Colour Monster' this week with lots of activities based around the story.

The children really enjoyed trying to free the monsters from the ice, which was a great sensory experience. They used different tools as well as their hands to try and get the monsters out.

The children have also been learning about different cultures and different places in our world.
